BRAIN SUPPORT

For Kids

Traditionally we look to August as the "Back to School" month. This year appears to be a bit different with the questions about whether schools will be back in the classrooms and how will the school year develop. One thing is certain; kids need support for concentration and learning so they can do and be their best.

It is a daunting situation, but take heart, there are natural solutions to help protect and improve their brain function!

Part of the challenge of Back-to-School is how to get our children back into a structured regimen after a summer. Nutrition is especially important to help kid's brains kick into high gear for school and learning. A healthy diet based upon abundant fruits and vegetables, lean protein and beneficial fats is a great place to start. Breakfast is the most important meal for growing minds and bodies. Try to start your kids on a protein-rich meal rather than carbohydrate loaded, sugar coated cereals. Options include fresh eggs, lean sausage or a low sugar organic protein shake made into a breakfast smoothie. This will give your children a strong start to the day and will stabilize blood sugar levels which will support better learning and behavior. Parents often experiment with a Gluten-free diet to help with their children's mental health. One final factor might be to get your children back on a school schedule, which means bedtime routine which will help them be on track and fully attentive for the learning days ahead. Melatonin has been used for years to assist in helping retrain schedules after an unstructured summer vacation.

★ Back-to-school for Kids:

MULTIVITAMINS

Micronutrients support concentration, athletic performance, and immunity.

OMEGA-3 SUPPLEMENTS

The DHA essential fatty acid in Omega-3 supplements is beneficial for brain and eyesight development.

PROBIOTICS

Digestive support can be beneficial to repair damages of too much sugar and refined carbohydrates – the summer staples for most children. They also support immunity, but more importantly can help with concentration and food allergies.

The Boomerang of School Lunch Options:

Shannon Hoffmann, daughter of GreenAcres founder Barb Hoffmann loves to tell stories about her lunches growing up.

Other kids used to gather around my lunchbox to see what latest "weird" thing I had to eat that day." Says Hoffmann "My Mom was learning all about nutrition & exploring new alternative options to junk food & I was often the test subject". In the 1980s, sugary peanut butter & jelly on white bread, sugary Capri Sun or sodas & twinkies were much more the norm. Shannon laughs "I would often arrive with blue corn chips (unheard of back then), grass (sprouts) falling out of my sandwiches that were barely held together by heavily seeded breads that often fell apart & the dreaded "hummus" side dish. And it all tasted like cardboard (at least to me)".

Shannon delights in knowing not all was lost on being the show & tell at lunchtime & today, many of those items have re-appeared with better flavors & more variety & have become lunchbox staples.

For this year's back to school suggestions - we'd like to feature four varieties, suggested from our friends at Bon Appetit, of the ever popular cream cheese sandwiches

- Seedy bread + cream cheese + apricot jam
- Jewish rye + cream cheese + sliced salami + pickles
- Pumpernickel bread + cream cheese + tomato rounds + salt + pepper
- Whole wheat bread + cream cheese + sliced cucumber + mint

These sandwiches can be combined with a wide variety of fresh organic fruit slices, blue corn or bean based or root veggie based chips, almond flour crackers, and a low sugar functional beverage to keep our kids full of good energy & not hindered by an afternoon sugar rush.

Be sure & select a high quality organic & hormone free cream cheese when possible, and there are numerous vegan cream cheese options as well. Breads can be gluten free/seeds/ancient grains or regular whole grain. Today there are so many options - experiment together as a family & you may have found some snacks for everyone!

ANOTHER ALLY FOR YOUR IMMUNE SYSTEM: MONOLAURIN

To understand monolaurin we need to first step back and review our food chemistry. Fatty acids called Medium Chain Fatty Acids or Medium Chain Triglycerides are lipids that have been shown to inhibit certain viruses. According to Naturalmedicalcare.com, one of most potent antimicrobial and antiviral lipids has been found in coconut oil and is called lauric acid. Coconut oil contains about 40 to 55 percent lauric acid. Lauric acid is the main saturated fatty acid found in coconut fat and a biochemical derivative of lauric acid is called monolaurin.

To achieve the maximum benefits of monolaurin - it's best to take in supplement form. Lauric acid is not as strong as monolaurin. When ingesting coconut oil, again, according to an article on naturalmedicalcare.com only a small percentage of the lauric acid will be transformed by the body into the powerful monolauric acid. The lauric acid in coconut oil is used by the body to make the same disease-fighting monolaurin that babies make from the lauric acid they get from their mothers' milk. The monolaurin is the substance from the breast milk that keeps infants from infections.

Monolaurin has been studied & is often used for preventing and treating colds (the common cold), influenza, herpes, shingles, Epstein Barr and other viral infections. And also to fight candida & other fungal infections and to boost the overall immune system

How does it work? Monolaurin works by binding to the lipid-protein envelope of the virus, thereby preventing it from attaching and entering host cells, preventing infection and replication. Monolaurin also destroys the viral envelope, killing the virus.

GET HEALTHY WITH GUS

"Stay Hydrated!" Summertime and anytime of year it is beneficial to stay hydrated. Water is a great beverage. But did you know it is more hydrating to take three to five sips than to gulp down a whole bottle of water? And do not fool yourself into thinking you are getting hydration by consuming sugar filled, caffeine loaded beverages. They dehydrate you! You can get electrolytes in a powder to add into plain water for a hydrating beverage that has zero calories and tons of minerals.

ADULTS NEED BRAIN SUPPORT

today more than ever

Brain Health is not just for the kids this year. Our precious seniors need to protect their brain health considering the ongoing increase of Alzheimer's disease and dementia that is affecting our senior population. And it is not just the seniors who are struggling. This year has seen a frazzled adult population looking for solutions to combat the stress that has come from world conditions. Anxiety and worries have contributed to mental decline and fear about losing cognitive well-being.

SENIOR POPULATION:

Our aging population has seen the ravages of Alzheimer's disease and dementia sweeping through their friends and family. Prevention is the best solution for avoiding mental age-related decline. The supplement list is a bit longer for our senior citizens; GreenAcres team members can help you find the supplements that might fit best for you. Current favorites for boosting cognitive health include MCT oil from coconuts, Phosphatidylserine (PS), the Indian herb, Bacopa and the medicinal mushroom, Lion's Mane. While each of these remedies offers promise, the need for the healthy foundation nutrients – multivitamin, omega-3 and probiotics are essential for the aging mind.

OVER-STRESSED ADULTS

The extra challenges associated with the virus scare, have adults feeling like their brains are fried from all the additional stress. The foundation nutrients are important for this group but adding some calming and balancing supplements can offer support for your nervous system so your brain functions better! Herbal adaptogens like ashwagandha, rhodiola and ginseng can ease stress, provide healthy energy, and improve sleep quality. Other supplements like L-theanine from Green tea or 5-HTP can support healthy serotonin levels in your body easing anxiety and agitation that can impact your thinking.

The supplements will benefit, but do not sell yourself short on the healthy diet for every stage of life. Simply put, abundant plant phytonutrients from fruits and vegetables, high-quality lean protein, and beneficial fats should be the focus on everyone's healthy lifestyle.

POWERFUL BRAIN BOOSTER
FOR MEMORY AND MENTAL CLARITY!

Lost car keys, missed appointments, or running into an old friend and struggling to remember their name – we have all been there. Is it age-related forgetfulness or too much stress? Who knows? There is good news, however. There are a host of natural ingredients that can support memory, focus and clarity. One product, Ginkgo Smart, from Irwin Naturals is a great, time-tested formula that contains some proven nutrients that can help you remember!

- Ginkgo Biloba Extract in the studied 24% standardized extract. Ginkgo enhances blood flow to the brain and improves cognitive function.
- Neuro-nutrients Acetyl-L-Carnitine, choline and DMAE offer neurotransmitter support.
- Alpha-Lipoic Acid acts as an antioxidant that protects neurons from oxidative stress.
- Plant sourced ingredients Velvet Bean and Huperzine round out the formula that is in a base of Omega-3 fatty acids – another proven brain healthy nutrient.

A supplement like Ginkgo Smart can offer a great starting point to better memory. Also, try to eat less refined sugar. Meditate. Get 8 hours of quality sleep. Drink less alcohol & exercise your brain with word games. Physical exercise also stimulates blood flow to the brain.

Speaking of a healthy diet- it is easier than you think to support your thinking!

- Coffee can help! Caffeine can increase energy, improve mood, and enhance concentration.
- Lower inflammation with food. Blue berries provide antioxidants and anti-inflammatory benefits. Turmeric in Asian and Indian foods offer daily support in the battle to combat inflammation.
- Eating cold water fish will increase your Omega-3 fatty acids which benefit both the brain and eyesight.

Never give up, there are always natural ways to improve your health. Making lifestyle improvements will improve your overall physical health which in turn will improve your mind.

Visit your GreenAcres store and ask about Ginkgo Smart. It is an easily affordable supplement that can work in combination with your healthy diet.
